CROWDING CATTLE IN CARS

Shipment from Wallingford in an inexcusable condition

A carload of cattle shipped from Wallingford and taken on by the Boston and Maine railroad at Bellows Falls was stopped at Athol, Mass., Tuesday and inspected by a humane officer, who found inexcusable conditions. Nearly 75 head of cattle were originally in the car, but at Athol the calves were found trampled to death on the floor of the car, and some of the larger cattle were down and in a suffering condition. One cow had an eye gouged out and the humane officer decided that very few of the animals would have reached Boston alive if an inspection had not taken place. At Athol some of the consignment were transferred to another car and those able to stand were sent to Boston.

WILD LIFE REFUGE

Bird Lover Offers 8000 Acres to State New Jersey

Charles C. Worthington, a wealthy lover of birds and animals, has offered 8,000 acres of mountain land to the State of New Jersey for use as a game preserve. Announcement of the offer was made yesterday by Ernest Napier, president of the State Board of Fish and Game Commissioners, at his home in East Orange.

Mr. Worthington, not only offers the use of the land for an indefinite period but wishes to give the property outright as a perpetual game reserve if it is possible for the State to accept it. He makes the provision that the property be used as a refuge for wild animals and birds.

R. L. Dittmars, curator of Bronx Zoo, said last evening that the offer probably ranked in importance with Mrs. Russell Sage's gift of an island in the Mississippi River for the preservation of bird life.

The Worthington acres are at present a refuge for many kinds of animals. The largest of these are the white tailed deer. There are also a great many rabbits, bears and smaller animals of the species which find some protection from game laws, while the animals which have not such protection, such as raccoon, gray fox, red fox, opossum, mink, bob cats and wild cats are very numerous as well.

The land also abounds in bird life. Partridges and quail are the most numerous and probably the most important of the feathered refugees.

Mr. Worthington's offer recalls the fact that in 1904 he set aside a large area of land near his home in Monroe county, Pennsylvania, as a refuge for birds and as a place where a study of their habits might be pursued.

William E. D. Scott, curator of the ornithological museum at Princeton University was placed in charge of the property with a free hand to conduct what experiments and studies he wished. Persons interested in the refuge formed the Worthington Society for the Investigation of Bird Life.

Mr. Worthington was formerly president of the Worthington Steam Pump Works. He retired from that post some years ago. He is a member of the Union League, the Engineers and the Lawyers clubs. He is also prominent in the Larchmont Yacht Club and the New York Athletic Club.

RECREATION NOTES

The game played yesterday between the Evening Banner and Huckleberry Junior teams was a very ragged one, resulting in the score 21 to 9 for the Banner boys. The respective batteries were, Parson, pitcher; Morrissey, catcher; and Short, pitcher and Pellerin, catcher.

The game for tomorrow is scheduled between the All Stars and the Huckleberry Jr's. The number of games played by each team is as follows: All Glants, 4; Evening Banner, 4; Huckleberry, Jr's, 5; All Stars, 1. As to games won, the Evening Banner is leading with no games lost, Huckleberry Juniors second and All Glants third.

Children's party Friday afternoon. Each child, who comes is asked to bring five cents.

The Playground orchestra will have its first rehearsal tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at Miss Margaret Pilling's on Safford street. If any member is unable to come kindly telephone 383-V.
